HISTORY

The University of Guam is the major institution of higher education in the Western Pacific. It is a U.S. land-grant institution accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges.

The University's history dates back to June 1952, when the island government established the Territorial College of Guam as a two-year teacher-training school under the United States Department of Education. The College, located on a high school campus in the village of Mongmong, had an initial enrollment of approximately 200 students; most of them experienced teachers, and a staff of 13.

The College moved to the present campus in central Mangilao in 1960 where a two-story classroom building and a library had been erected. The College's academic programs expanded to accommodate increasing enrollment and student needs.
