RE: Fall 2007 Analysis of East Asian Program

1. External recognition and measures of quality of the program

The faculty members of the EAS program excel in the areas of research and teaching:

a) External recognition:

Dr. Chang is also the winner of “Excellence in Research” award at the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences, UOG in 2003.

Dr. Chang is listed in Who’s Who Among America’s Teachers. 5th Ed. (1998); 6th Ed. (2000); 8th Ed. (2003-04); 9Ed. (2005)

b) The following list of books is just an example of the external recognition and the quality of the program:

Myth and Literature. Tianjing: Nankai University Press, 2004
Native Placeism, Nationalism and Diplomacy (to be published)

c) Teaching: EAS faculty members have been gratified by the positive responses they have had from students and colleagues. We may quote a few examples: students wrote in the teaching evaluation of the University of Guam: “Enthusiastic. Enjoyed the semester greatly. Best ever professor!!” “Very intelligent, very energetic about class. Used different methods of teaching. Made subject very interesting. He is an awesome professor and this class was probably one the two best classes I have taken in my life.”

2. All course outlines and course Student Learning Outcomes and assessment plan in place (copy of assessment plan and program SLOs):

a) All Course Outlines with Student Learning Objectives are in Place:

All course outlines have been revised to reflect both the program and course by covering almost all aspects of East Asia and increasing sensitivity to these important civilizations. The learning outcomes of students are clearly articulated in the mission statement of 2006 EAS Program Review.

b) Assessment Plan in Place

Each of the EAS faculty has devised a preliminary assessment plan appropriate to her/his expertise. Attached please find a sample preliminary assessment test from Dr. Qin’s Modern China class.

In addition to preliminary assessment, EAS faculty members in the program employ a wide range of methods of evaluation to test student learning outcomes. All forms of evaluation, whether objective testing or written subjective exams demand that the student employ critical thinking in his or her answers. Even true and false or multi-choice exams are written to elicit critical thinking analysis as opposed to pure memorization. Students are required to know and express factual information in their work, but they must employ these facts in some sort of critical analysis relevant to cultural problems discussed in class. The class debates, individual and group projects, individual journals, community projects, and evaluative reviews of literary and cinematic materials are all means employed by faculty to evaluate student outcomes and to measure achievement of program objectives.

3) Centrality to Mission

The mission of the East Asian Studies (EAS) program is as follows:
1) Knowledge — to prepare UOG students and the community at large to be knowledgeable citizens of the 21st century. The program widens students’ horizons by disseminating knowledge of, and improving an understanding of these rich and important civilizations. It makes them see themselves in a broader perspective and develop an appreciation and tolerance of cultural diversity, for to be educated means to be able to see beyond the narrow geographic, temporal, and cultural bounds of one’s homeland.

2) Abilities — to empower UOG students and the community at large to meet their future challenges of a rapidly changing world by cultivating their various abilities. A successful UOG graduate must not only be knowledgeable on a wide range of subjects, but also have developed higher-level critical thinking skills: (a) problem solving: to sensitively discover and accurately articulate a problem, identify why there was a problem and bring about a solution; (b) conceptualizing: to research for sources and information, quickly identify main themes, and organize information logically; (c) judgement: to critically assess evidence and data, and make a thoughtful resolution to a question; (d) creativity: to produce imaginative or original ideas.

4) Support of Strategic Initiatives

a) Because outside funding is important to better the program and to stimulate students’ interests, EAS program has sent letters to big companies for donations and received $25,000 from Mobil, Guam in 2007.

b) EAS Program has designed its new website—a window for the program emphasizing that a good background in East Asia is invaluable for work in government service, business, academic professions, finance, service industries, diplomacy, the legal profession, and so on.

c) EAS Program has conducted several East Asian film festivals to stimulate student interest on and enhance the understanding of East Asian culture and history.

d) EAS Program has tried, though failed to obtain funding, to establish an East Asian Art Gallery as a strategy to stimulate more interests.

e) EAS Program has established an exchange program to encourage students to spend a summer or a semester in Yantai University of China to study both language and culture.

5) Meeting student and regional needs

a) The East Asian Film Festivals which EAS program conducted attracted not only UOG students but also people from the community, including a Marianas Variety journalist who gave a detailed report on it.

b) With the Mobil fund, the East Asian collections would be enriched and therefore better meeting student and regional need.

6) Completed program reviews, with recommendations acted upon (last review and actions taken).

a) Last Review: The East Asian Studies Program Review for the period 1999-2004 was submitted to the Curriculum Committee of CLASS in December 2005. The deputy SVP endorsed the review on July 3, 2007: “Dr. Qin, Assistant Professor of East Asian History, has brought new vitality to the consortium of interdisciplinary faculty of the program, who together are attracting new students, financially contributions, and community engagement to the Program. This is a program on the upswing. As all reviewers recognized, the East Asian Studies Program has numerous growth opportunities for academic exchanges with East Asian institutions and other related programs due to the close proximity of Guam to East Asia. External reviewer, Dr. Xiaoyuan Liu, Associate Professor of History at Iowa State University, applauded the University for charting a strategic course, via this program review, to meet the challenges and embrace the opportunities of East Asia, which has ‘the most vigorous economies of the world and [which] promises a plenitude of opportunities.’” He noted the especially strong Japanese component to the program, the Asian study-abroad course, and the East Asian Collection at RFK Library. Program faculty are commended for their fund-raising work that resulted in the recent $25,000 donation from Mobil Oil to purchase new materials for this collection.”

b) Actions Taken:

1. Trying hard to enhance student recruitment as majors, double majors, and minors in East Asian Studies
2. Developing plans for study-abroad opportunities
3. Reviewing the RFK Library’s East Asian Studies Collection and recommending new books.
4. Seeking new funding opportunities
5. Reviewing and revising course syllabi to including learning objectives
6. Enhancing the scholarship and research productivity of faculty members

East Asia, our neighbors, comprising China, Japan, Korea and Southeast Asia, is home to almost one-third of the world's people, the most populous area of the world. It contains the world's oldest continuous civilizations. It is also the most dynamic region in today's world; economic change in East Asia has dwarfed what has taken place elsewhere. At a time when the roads and stores are filled with Japanese cars and Chinese goods, it is no longer necessary to argue for East Asia's economic importance. Further, in political and strategic terms the United States links with East Asia are critical. Ezra F. Vogel, the director of Harvard's Fairbank Center for East Asian Research said, "China could well become the most important country to the U.S., for better or for worse, more important even than Japan, Mexico, Canada, or Russia." Therefore people with knowledge of East Asia are highly valued in government, diplomacy, commerce, academia, legal profession, finance, service industries, etc.

In order to disseminate knowledge of, and increase sensitivity to, these important countries, the 1st East Asian Film Festival will be held at the University of Guam Lecture Hall, 7:00-9:00, 3/31, 4/1, 4/2, 4/7, 4/8, 4/9 & 4/16.

Dear President Heath,

In East Asian cultures prominent persons often left a legacy that would benefit future generations. Do you want to leave a legacy? Have you considered assisting future generations by contributing to higher education? Allow me to introduce to you a means by which you can leave an academic legacy.

Why is East Asian Studies program special? East Asia, our neighbors, comprising China, Japan, Korea and Southeast Asia, is home to almost one-third of the world’s people, the most populous area of the world. It contains the world’s oldest continuous civilizations. It is also the most dynamic region in today’s world; economic change in East Asia has dwarfed what has taken place elsewhere. At a time when the roads and stores are filled with Japanese cars and Chinese goods, it is no longer necessary to argue for East Asia’s economic importance. Further, in political and strategic terms the United States links with East Asia are critical. Ezra F. Vogel, the director of Harvard’s Fairbank Center for East Asian Research said, “China could well become the most important country to the U.S., for better or for worse, more important even than Japan, Mexico, Canada, or Russia.” Therefore people with knowledge of East Asia are highly valued in government, diplomacy, commerce, academia, legal profession, finance, service industries, etc.

At the University of Guam in the College of Arts and Sciences under the Division of Humanistic Studies resides the interdisciplinary program of East Asian Studies. East Asian Studies provides students the opportunity to gain a multi-cultural and interdisciplinary Bachelor of Arts degree (B.A.) or a minor by studying the cultures of China, Korea, and Japan. The students take special courses in the areas of East Asian history, business and management, literature and philosophy, art, music, communication, political science, and languages.

The faculty members of East Asian Studies have opened a special account with the University of Guam Endowment Foundation to sponsor the East Asian Studies Scholarship Fund, and a number of faculty are personally contributing to the Scholarship Fund. The scholarship awards will be given to the students with the highest grade point average who major or minor in East Asian Studies. We want to extend an opportunity to you, as a prominent person in our community, to bequeath a legacy by donating to the East Asian Studies Scholarship Fund.

If you or your company will contribute One-Thousand Dollars, then we will honor you with the title “EMpress” OR “EMperor,” and the $1000.00 scholarship award will bear your imperial name. If you contribute Five-Hundred Dollars, we will honor you with the title “SHOGUN,” and the $500.00 scholarship award will bear your name. For a $250.00 donation we will bestow the title "Academic-war Lord". Of course, we will accept donations of any amount, and your name will be listed among the various donors to the East Asian Scholarship Fund. If you donate at least $150.00 your name will be inscribed on the UOG donors wall, printed in the Endowment Foundation's quarterly News Letter, and you will receive a UOG donors pin.

Thank you for your donation!

Sincerely Yours,

PS. If you want to make a donation, please make your check payable to the University of Guam Endowment Foundation-East Asian Studies Scholarship Fund. Thank you.
Dear Members of the East Asian Community of Guam:

Happy Lunar New Year!

We are writing to you to request your assistance in constructing an Asian style garden (small) on the University of Guam campus, in front of the RFK Library.

We don't have to look very far to see the truth of the argument that East Asia has demonstrated an increasing importance to the world and the knowledge of the region is essential for both the future competitiveness of UOG students and the prosperity of Guam as a whole. It is high time that we make efforts on the development of UOG students/Guam interest in this important region.

It is the reason we want to build a beautiful Asian (either a Japanese, Chinese, Korean or a combination of all three) style garden. The garden could be a simple, Zen-style, sand and rock garden without plants. It could be a more complex garden with plants but without a pond, or it could be a garden with plants and a pond.

The estimated costs for each type of garden are:
$25,000.00 for a sand and rock garden;
$75,000.00 for a plant garden;
$125,000.00 for a garden with a pond.

We are asking your company or community organization to consider building the entire garden or part of the garden, or simply making a donation to the UOG Endowment Foundation's Asian Garden Fund.

Thank you for considering this request.

Truly Yours, Sincerely Yours,

Dr. Mary L. Spencer, Dean

Dr. James Sellmann, Associate Dean
